

YOUTH AT THE HELM.

A Man Still Young Who Has Helped to Create a Great Paper. The rise of a great newspaper is matter of unflinching interest, not only to the profession, but to the general public.

HORATIO WINSTON SEYMOUR.

Not many years ago Horatio Winslow Seymour began to be spoken of as one of the promising young journalists of Milwaukee. In 1875 he received the appointment of telegraph editor of the Chicago Times, and a little later all the newspaper world, as well as the readers of The Times, were laughing or wondering at the startling headlines over its news columns.

Charles G. Seymour, brother of Horatio W., though not so widely known, is equally successful as sporting editor of The Herald, and is one of the national authorities on baseball.

A Genius Despite Rank and Disease. The late Lord Essex, says the London World, was for many years an almost constant sufferer from the most terrible paroxysms of tic, which were supposed to have originated in a blow on the head, and persistently defied the aid of surgical science.

During the croquet craze of twenty years ago he made many thousands of pounds out of mallets he invented, and when his eyesight was failing he designed a light open hearse, or rather bier, on wheels, which he kept in one of his coach-houses at Cassiobury, and often showed to visitors.

Two Michigan Judges. Judge William Newton, of Flint, Mich., the Democratic nominee for justice of the supreme court, is sixty-two years old.

Judge Durand. In Genesee county, Judge Newton writes an old-fashioned hand with fine lines and little ink, and his chirography is as plain as printing.

A SCHOOL HOUSE PLAN.

Heating and Ventilating Facilities Are Carefully Considered. The fathers and mothers of children pay very little attention to the manner in which their offspring is taught; to the capabilities of the teachers, their general character or anything which affects the mental or physical welfare of the scholars.

Here with are presented a school house plan and a story that may redound to the benefit of the public and the pupil. A large part of the life of children is spent in the schoolroom.

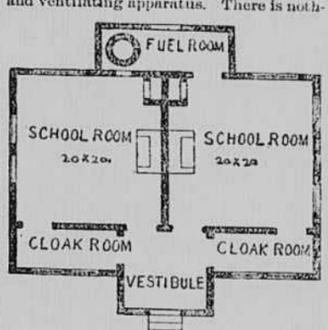

FRONT ELEVATION.

under other circumstances, to say nothing of ventilation. The particular matter of ventilation was considered in another article. It was stated that pure air, the cheapest thing that there is around us, is the one thing that is the most often denied us in school buildings.

One reason why school children are neglected in the matter of comforts which properly belong to them is that those who are providing for them undertake to build monuments for themselves.

In the plan which is here given there is first a vestibule, on each side a cloakroom, and back of the cloakrooms and vestibule are schoolrooms.

FLOOR PLAN.

FINE WEATHER WE'RE HAVING.

A Fact Appreciated by a Young Man with an Extensive Vocabulary. We have a young society man in Detroit who is proud of it. He is a society man who can be something else when he wants to, and he wants to be quite frequently.

"It's a charming day," observed the swell young woman he had met shortly after he had entered the room. "Yes," he admitted, because it was a charming day.

"We have been having very lovely weather for some time," she continued. "Yes," he responded, with the air of a man who knew what he was talking about and proposed to finish his subject completely before he was done with.

The girl gave a slight gasp and looked at him appealingly, but he was pitiless. "I see by the United States signal service forecast," he went on, "that the indications are for New England generally fair and warmer weather, probably followed by showers Monday night in extreme northern portions of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont; wind shifting to southeast. For eastern New York, eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, fair and warmer wind shifting to southeast.

Then he smiled sweetly and would have heard what the girl had to say about it, but she didn't have anything to say—she was speechless, and he passed on to the next one, smiling as before.

How He Was Killed. It was late in the night. The police reporter was the only man on duty in the office, and thinking that his work was over for the night he had just coiled himself up on the desk for a nap.

Springing to his feet the police reporter seized the bell crank, gave an answering ring and yelled "hello" in an energetic voice.

"Hello," came the reply; "have you heard of the man who was killed on the west side, just about midnight, on an electric car?"

"No; how was he killed?" asked the reporter, with eager expectancy in his every word.

"He was picking electric currents off the wire," came the reply, and the reporter heard a derisive yell, as though a score of fiends were amused at his discomfiture.—New York Mercury.

Why She Wanted to Know. "Is there a smoking car on this train?" she asked as she placed a dainty patent leather boot on the step of the car.

"I fell into the pond today, and it was up to my neck," said Walter. "Nonsense," said Jack; "the water in the pond isn't more than a foot deep."

An Unseen Visitor. To perform its proper function, man is kept pure and healthy, and the system will weaken, and disease will attack some vital organ, and tall intestine suffering and certain death.
